

Mikhailovitch Denies Murder Captured Soldiers, Civilians

BERGRADE, (AP) -- Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch entered a blanket denial Sunday to prosecution charges that he countenanced war crimes by his Chetnik guerrillas and related spiritedly that "I never ordered murder, particularly of women and children."

"Never, as long as I have been a soldier, have I allowed even captured soldiers to be killed, and more so, never civilians," Mikhailovitch said as the prosecution confronted him with charges against the Chetnik forces ranging from murder and rape to the burning of villages.

The testimony in the Sunday session -- the seventh day of Mikhailovitch's trial on charges of treason and collaboration -- was indicative of the violence of recent Balkan history. Much of the testimony concerned interpretation of "W," described by the prosecution as the name of a Chetnik unit.

The prosecution contended that "W" stood for the word "zaklati," which means to stab to death. Mikhailovitch testified that it denoted "zaplati," which means to frighten.

Political Atmosphere Is Tense As Java Hostilities Stepped Up

BATAVIA, (REUTERS) -- While Allied military headquarters here reports greater activity on all fronts in Java and around Madura, the political atmosphere is growing more tense.

Military and political situations are linked in a mass of rumors at a time when military operations apparently are being stepped up.

On the military side, the Indonesians claim that the gradual extension of the Allied perimeter around Batavia is regarded in the interior of the country as an attempt at reconquest.

The threat of more fire and the thunder of artillery from Bekasi can be plainly heard in nearby Batavia. Troops of the 2nd Indian Division who took the town some days ago are holding it against Indonesian extremists.

Indonesian political circles expect the reply of the Indonesian republic government to the Dutch proposals for the future of Indonesia, will be headed to Hubertus Van Mook, acting governor general of the Dutch East Indies, this week.

The Indonesian answer, it is suggested, is based on acceptance of Indonesian authority over Java and Madura. Dutch control would be acknowledged elsewhere and the Indonesians would be prepared fully to co-operate in reconstruction if agreement could be reached on these points.

French Communists Oppose Moderate Group Leadership

PARIS, (CP) -- The Communists served notice Sunday they would oppose any government headed by the moderate Movement republicain Populaire, as Gen. de Gaulle has proposed.

The Communists, with strong support of M.R.P. proposals for the fourth French republic.

Gen. de Gaulle, breaking a political silence of six months, urged the constituent assembly to draft for the fourth republic a constitution which would set up a two-house legislature and a strong executive. The M.R.P., which displaced the Communists as the strongest single party in the June 2 elections, has advanced similar proposals.

The French people in a referendum in May rejected a Communist-backed constitution which would have set up a powerful one-house legislature and reduced the president virtually to the status of a figurehead.

Speaking in Bayeux, Normandy, Gen. de Gaulle said France faces a "life or death" situation, with "the position, independence and existence of our country and empire really at stake."

Therefore the branches of the government should be "clearly separated and strongly balanced," he argued.

Gen. de Gaulle's speech was bound to have profound reverberations, since it placed him in open opposition to the Communists, who still insist upon the all-powerful single house assembly.

Orillia Police Capture Man Wanted On 51 Charges of Armed Robbery

ORILLIA, ONT., (CP) -- Police with drawn guns captured William Liddle, 23, before he could use a loaded revolver in his belt. They said he was wanted on charges of armed robbery, bank holdups and escaping custody.

His capture climaxed the most extensive police manhunt in eastern Canada in 10 years.

Chief Constable W. Carson said Liddle is wanted in Montreal on 51 charges of armed robbery as well as escaping from a police station. Liddle was captured Sunday as he drove through the streets of this town with his wife and two other women.

Premier King, Back from London, Stresses Need of Helping Europe

HALIFAX, (CP) -- Prime Minister King warned that if the food for Europe were discontinued "by strikes in this country or any other country, then it will give rise to conditions which will react on this part of the world."

The prime minister, who arrived on the liner Queen Mary after attending the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London, said he had learned conditions in Europe were "most serious."

"I feel that too great an effort cannot be put forth by this continent in giving all possible assistance in food and clothing if famine is to be avoided on something approaching revolution prevented," he said.

1,000 Canadian Doctors Leave Banff As 77th Annual Convention Closes

The 77th annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association officially wound up Saturday after week-long discussion of new trends in the medical world.

4,000 Rats, 200 Pigs, 200 Goats and Mice Arrive at Bikini Atoll For Atom Bomb Test

ABOARD U.S.S. MOUNT McKinley, BIKINI, (AP) -- The U.S.S. transport Burelle arrived at Bikini carrying live animals for the coming atomic bomb test. Aboard were about 4,000 rats, 200 pigs, 200 goats and some guinea pigs and mice.

Col. Thomas H. Dyer, chief of the test force, said task force headquarters in Washington had received about 5,000 protests against the use of animals.

Admiral Blaney, commander of the atomic test task force, told reporters the use of animals was essential to safeguarding the armed forces, and civilians in any future atomic war.

Offers $ 3,000,000 For Hesse Jewels

NEW YORK, (AP) -- Jack M. Worst, Dayton, O., jeweler, said he had cabled an offer to the House of Hesse to buy the Hessian crown jewels and was prepared to pay $3,000,000 for the fabulous collection, now for the most part in U.S. army custody after its theft and recovery.

A U.S. army colonel, his W.A.C. wife, and one other army officer were taken into custody last week by investigators who said the three were responsible for the theft of the crown jewels valued at $1,500,000 from ancient Kronberg castle in Germany.

WASHINGTON, (AP) -- Col. Jack W. Durant and Capt. Kathleen B. Smith, both army officers, were taken through their counsel Saturday they had "admitted any act which they considered criminal" in connection with the Kronberg castle jewel case.

Warns Communists Marines Will Fight

TSINGTAO, (AP) -- Chinese Communists operating in 12 miles north of this East China port were reported to have been warned that United States Marines would fight if their positions here were attacked.

A reliable informant said the warning was conveyed by a high-ranking Communist official who was flown to Communist headquarters at Lini, 140 miles south west of here.

Only minor skirmishes were reported around Tsingtao, meanwhile, and much of the tension inside the city had been eased.

Britain and Canada Talk Long-Term Wheat Contract

OTTAWA, (CP) -- Behind closed doors, British and Canadian government officials Sunday talked over terms and prices as they continued discussions on the details of a proposed long-term wheat contract between Canada and Britain.

There was speculation that the final agreement might take the form of a four or five-year contract with prices fixed for the first year or two and then revised at a later conference in the light of the world wheat situation at that time.

At present, Canada meets British wheat needs without fixed contract, selling the commodity at the dominion's export price of $1.55 a bushel. Under this arrangement, Canada has shipped to Britain 125,000,000 bushels thus far in the current crop year and 147,500,000 bushels in the entire 1944-45 crop year.

It is expected Canada's exports of wheat this year alone total 325,000,000 bushels, or almost 1,000,000 daily.

Truman Would Merge All Forces Under Single Cabinet Officer

WASHINGTON, (AP) President Truman asked congress Saturday to merge the United States armed forces under a single cabinet officer and give the air forces more responsibility than the navy wanted that branch to have.

The president, deciding a disagreement between the secretaries of war and navy over unification details, ruled generally in favor of the army position on three points they told him they could not resolve. He went most of the way with the navy on the fourth major point in dispute.

The White House made public a letter from President Truman to War Secretary Robert Patterson and Navy Secretary James Forrestal in which was mentioned his gratification over assurances that service leaders would "give wholehearted support to a plan of unification to the extent that the decision would be" on the disagreements.

The president's ruling for a single department under one cabinet head was strictly an army victory.

President Truman followed largely the recommendations of the army that the air forces, with some exceptions, be given the responsibility for the development, procurement, maintenance and operation of the country's military air resources.

Mrs. Kuehn was taken to hospital by Jack Hayes ambulance.

Chetnik Claims He Gave Britain Tip on V-1 Year Before Attacks

BERGRADE, (Reuters) -- Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch, Yugoslav Chetnik leader, told the court trying him here Saturday that he gave information to Britain on Germany's V-1 jet-propelled flying bombs in 1943, a year before the robot attacks started. He did not deny that he had earlier the court trying Mikhailovitch on charges of treason and collaboration refused a defence request to call United States aviators as witnesses. The request was opposed, not only by the prosecutor, but by Mikhailovitch himself. "I never collaborated with the enemy," Mikhailovitch told the court.

Eskimos Move Into First Place In Senior Baseball Standing

Those battling bats of Bert Culver have taken over top rating in the City senior baseball circuit. Behind a slick eight-hit pitching chore by Eddie Belter the Culverites Saturday turned back Johnny Galvin's Cards, 3-1, to vault into the first slot in the standings.

The encounter was Rearfrow park's best offering to date. It was replete with fine fielding, the teams combining to reach up six hits in eight innings. The Culverites, led by pitcher Earl Ornest, took over the right fence in the first frame to win a hat for himself and Pete Tedeschi, San Francisco's gift to the team for a patrol, among Emerson (Buck) Eaton who started on the mound for the leasers, for a two-run double and a mighty triple.

All down the line the boys hustled with the customers in mind.

After Ornest and hampered off a high, outside pitch in the opening inning Belter settled down to block the Cards the rest of the game. Going the way he was it proved to be particular effort for the ex-army paratrooper. He was supreme as he went about the business of winning his third 1946 victory against no defeat.

Eaton lashed his way along without serious damage until the third. At this point Tedeschi shook him up with a cool into fielder's choice. In the sixth -- he was driven to the showers, hits by Dean, Price and Belter being largely instrumental in the manufacture of his third pair of rubber.

Game marked the return to action of rival manager Bert Culver and Johnny Galvin. Galvin at grounds forced a postponement of Sunday's scheduled clash between Cards and Cubs. Score by innings:

Five-Run Blast in 10th Inning Gives C.N. Win Against Leafs

Eighteen-year old Harry Pruden outlasted 18-year old Dick Lowe in a nine-inning battle at Clarke stadium Sunday afternoon and C.N. scored a 6-1, 10-inning win at the expense of Maple Leafs. The Junior league offering was highly interesting by far from start to finish.

The Low-Hiatt-managed railroaders took the verdict when Lowe, a strong-armed right-hander, in the all semblance of control after one had been retired in the 10th. He walked four men in succession to force "Irish" Modiney home with what proved to be the winning run. After this "senior" Pruden reached him for a safe knock, there was an error at third and the winning run could come to his assistance and put out the five runs were over.

The slightly-built Pruden turned back 10 Leafs on strikes. Lowe curved 13 of Hiatt's hustlers into submission. Score by innings:

Wilce and Graham Stand Out In Legion's 10-2 Soccer Win

North Side Legion soccer squad continued its unbeaten ways at Clarke stadium pitch Saturday, running roughshod over a game, if overmatched, Army Navy and air force Vets aggregation, for a 10-2 triumph.

With Jack Wilce, who scored four goals, and Bob Graham, who turned in a trick, the Legion crew enjoyed a 4-1 margin at the half. During the second 45-minute frame Martin Collingwood's booters scored almost at will to run the total to 10.

In addition to Wilce and Graham, Legion scorers were Jim Anderson, Harry Gledhill and George Ross. Jim Graham and steady going Ken Parsons counted for the losers.

The teams met in an Edmonton and District Football association contest.

Tax Facts and Budget

Some significance may attach to predictions by cabinet ministers of Ontario and Saskatchewan that Ottawa will sign taxation agreements with the provinces before the present war-time agreements expire, the last of them next March.

Ontario's financial secretary, Hon. D. H. Michener, recently forecast such a development, and just the other day Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan said he believed the dominion-provincial conference would be convened again soon. The latter added that Minister Lisle had informed him consideration was being given to signing agreements with the provinces willing to accept the general terms of the dominion's proposals.

The Ontario minister's statement is particularly noteworthy, as his province and Quebec, by their excessive demands, dashed the hopes of any such agreement reached at the dominion-provincial gathering early last month. Mr. Lisle expected to present his budget to parliament this month. It must be assumed, under the circumstances, that he is preparing for the best of no taxation agreement with the provinces.

Mr. Lisle covered that possibility in his speech last week. He said: "If no tax agreement is reached and the present agreements expire, the dominion is bound to reduce the corporation income tax by ten percent and to revise downward its personal income tax."

Press gallery reports anticipate the downward revision will amount to another sixteen percent in the amount of the tax each individual presently required to pay. Last October saw the first sixteen percent cut.

Prime Minister King is hurrying home, reportedly to settle tax reduction disputes in the cabinet. Saskatchewan premier, James G. Stewart, is expected to be at the dominion-provincial conference. Which ever may be right, the substantial reduction in the personal income tax, especially of the lower income groups, is long overdue. The reduction must be on the total dominion and provincial taxes, whether levied and collected by the dominion alone or by both dominion and provincial authorities.

Senator Warren Austin

In appointing Senator Warren Austin of Vermont as United States representative on the United Nations Security Council, President Truman has followed the Roosevelt practice of making bi-partisan appointments to key foreign policy posts. Senator Austin is a Republican, although he has previously supported the administration in foreign affairs.

The move has been hailed with general approval in the United States. Senator Austin has proved himself a man of unusual ability and courage. He advocated international cooperation to maintain peace when isolationist feeling was at its height among the American people.

In the early years of the war, he supported all measures taken to help the Allies; later, he played a leading role in winning congress to the idea of a world organization.

His appointment may chance considerably be made on the Council. Senator Austin is generally rated a stronger man than his predecessor, Edward R. Tamm. He is not likely to put up with as much pressure and supervision from the state department as Tamm did. He is expected to make the day-to-day decisions himself, without depending too much on instructions from Washington.

In the meantime, however, he is involved in a difficult situation. A constitutional technicality prevents him from taking his new post until next January. He is expected to be replaced by Herschel V. Johnson, a state department official who was Mr. Tamm's assistant. Johnson will be the acting representative.

Senator Austin has, for the moment, been appointed a "special advisor" to Tamm, with the rank of ambassador.

How this divided authority will work in practice remains to be seen.

Inflation? No, Just Folly

The London Daily Mail reported recently that the prices of mine shafts had been bid up in London so furiously by American buyers that the price of a coal mine in that city was now $40,000.

This is much worse than inflation. It is sheer folly. The fantastic height of ten times the pre-war figure, British and Continental buyers retired from the market.

The average price paid for wild mink was $56; for the domestic variety, $36.

One of the leading American buyers was quoted by the Mail as saying: "We have ten women in America waiting to buy every one of the 75 coats that this mink will make, and they will pay at least $16,000 for each one."

Not Only Lumber Scarce

Canada, as an Edmonton contractor put it the other day, is trying to do three years' work in the next six months. Supplies and labor were available in "normal" amounts, the demand this year would exceed supply. The contractor said he was not operating at normal; some are far from it.

One of the leading American buyers was quoted by the Mail as saying: "We have ten women in America waiting to buy every one of the 75 coats that this mink will make, and they will pay at least $16,000 for each one."

The tremendous amount of building under way is shown by Maclean Building Reports Limited. The total value of contracts awarded in the last three months was $2,000,000, a record, and for the first five months of the year was $2,750,000.

The figures are a half and a half times those of the corresponding periods of 1945. Work on nearly six thousand housing units was kept last month, some two thousand of them being in the four western provinces.

Canadians have the money and the desire to build. Housing is still the most urgent need. But while May contracts for dwelling units were valued at $2,000,000, those for commercial and industrial buildings totalled $4,000,000.

If even half of the houses and apartment buildings planned for this year are to be occupied by the time winter weather sets in, federal authorities will have to direct almost half a million dollars in construction. This will mean a return to the priority system or something very like it.

Greater effort will have to be shown by the armed services and War Assets Corporation in making lumber and fittings, in disassembling brick, drill bits, hammers and such like, available to the house building industry. Fortunately, there are signs that this may be done very soon.

King's Honor List

Like so many of its predecessors, the King's birthday list, both for Britain and for Canada, largely honors, distinguished service during the war, whether in the forces or behind the lines. In Britain, however, the number of non-military honors has shown a slight recent increase.

To most Canadians, the most interesting awards will be those to General Macdonald, and Reconstruction Minister Howe. The former has been named Companion of Honor, while the latter becomes a member of the Imperial Privy Council. These honors have been well-earned.

General Macdonald was, more than anyone else, the creator of the first Canadian army. Mr. Howe has been the organizer of the prodigious industrial expansion which enabled Canada not only to arm and equip her own forces, but also to help supply her allies.

Other war leaders honored included Lord Louis Mountbatten, Admiral Viscount Cunningham, and Field Marshal Lord Alexander Brodie. A particularly well-deserved award was that of the rare and coveted Order of Merit to the late Sir John A. Macdonald, an outstanding service as ambassador to the United States.

Among the non-war appointments the most interesting were the knighthoods conferred on Sir Walter Citrine and Sir William Beveridge. Sir Citrine has been a prominent figure in the British trade union movement for many years. Beveridge is not a labor man, but his social security proposals have led all others.

Non-hereditary knighthoods have been given to a number of labor party stalwarts. Thus the cabinet has contrived to reward service to the labor movement without distributing hereditary peerages, to which it has always been opposed.

The Third Column

LONDON LETTER

By Basil Dean

Although the face of London as a whole has changed but little since the bombs ceased to fall, it has changed enormously, and for the worse, in one particular respect: the movement of traffic on its narrow, busy streets. London's traffic constituted a perennial and seemingly insoluble problem before the war. Tight gas rationing, the abolition of private motoring except for business purposes and reduction of the number of buses gave the city, during the war years, the easiest traffic conditions it has enjoyed since the internal combustion engine was invented. But the return of the "motor car" has brought back the old problem, coupled with more road transport vehicles and increase of bus services, have combined to restore pre-war chaos.

X X X

Traffic jams on Piccadilly, on Oxford street and on the Strand now frequently extend for six or eight blocks; at busy intersections controlled by traffic signals, it is not uncommon for three or four policemen to be kept busy trying to bring the confusion which the traffic lights cause when vehicles try to turn across the stream. There are virtually no parking facilities of any kind in the city, and the result is that automobiles and taxis park on the streets, and, since those streets are in the heart of the city, traffic to a single line in each direction.

Many important bus routes are reduced to utter confusion. The bus and the car are in Fleet street and the Strand. It is supposed to operate at 2-minute intervals; yet it is customary to wait 5 minutes for a bus and then have six of them appear, bumper to bumper. It is often necessary to travel by bus or taxi from Trafalgar Square to Oxford Circus -- considerably less than one mile. Taxi meters run up

To those who demand action, the answer is that the haphazard layout of ancient London makes effective action almost impossible. The streets are straight and all are exceedingly narrow. Real estate is so valuable that the wholesale replanning and relocation of thorough routes, probably the only real solution, is almost impossible. Land in the "city" for example, is traditionally estimated as worth 10 times as much as elsewhere.

So far, the most ambitious schemes have confined themselves to the construction of roundabouts and roundabouts through traffic around, instead of across, London. No one has dared face the job of clearing up the mess which normal local traffic in the central area has caused.

However, the two great "motorist" organizations, the Royal Automobile Club and the Automobile Association, have now issued a series of joint recommendations which they believe would help. Their plan is essentially short-term, involves no expensive construction and is directed at clearing up the mess which normal local traffic in the central area has caused.

X X X

The main through routes, they suggest, should be properly selected and designated; and no parking whatsoever would be permitted during specified periods. Loading and unloading trucks on these routes should be prohibited during busy hours, and all horse-drawn vehicles should be excluded. Pedestrians should be prevented from walking by barriers erected along the sidewalks with gaps at proper crossing places. Buses and trolleys should be diverted to other streets, since their constant stopping and starting constitutes a major factor in the traffic jam.

Streets not scheduled as through routes should be used for parking to their maximum capacity.

One-way traffic schemes should be much more widely and generally applied, and "less local in character." They should be coordinated and boldly instituted to form a comprehensive system of interlocking parallel through routes. The time for advisory committees, say the two organizations, "has come."

BIBLE MESSAGE

But one in a certain place testified, saying, What is a man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou shouldst reward him? Thou hast put all things under his feet. (Heb. 2:6, 7)

Can Canada Compete?

Directly it is not a matter of concern to us in Canada how much coal British miners dig in a week or how much they are paid for doing it. But indirectly, that can be a matter of very great concern to us. It will be of very great concern to us as a people if we are to face up to the reality that Canadian products will have to compete with British products in the markets of the world, and compete successfully if we are going to maintain a national income anywhere near that of wartime and sufficient to provide a high average standard of living.

British miners are out to cut down their working week to five days and raise their hourly scale of pay; not by holding up the nation, but by stating as much coal in five days as they have been getting out in five and a half days.

This doesn't mean that British mines will stand idle two days in the week. By overlapping the work of one shift or another, seven days and nights in every week--employing more men and producing more coal than ever before.

And miners are not the only class in Britain who understand that "mass production" is the key to a shorter week or another pay, and all-round prosperity. The same principle and the same line of action will be applied to the rest of the British economy. We can take that as a certainty. Now are Canadian industrial products going to "back up" in foreign markets against that kind of competition? Obviously they just won't stack up successfully unless the public generally get hold of the root fact that nothing but all-out production can put our products before the foreign buyer at a price he will be willing to pay.

Alberta's Opportunity

No person living in any of the five eastern provinces will be permitted to buy more than sixty percent of his winter fuel supply before the first of November. This seems to suggest that many householders there have been filling their bins already, thereby clearing out supplies as fast as they arrived and creating demand for a famine when cold weather approached.

In any case the regulations disclose official fear that reliance on Canada in the United States will not restore normal supplies to that half of the Dominion. The regulations mean that Alberta coal will have little or no competition and that the province has a great opportunity to get into the Ontario market in quantity.

This would be a good time to flood Ontario with leaflets explaining how to get Alberta coal. The best advantage in stove and furnace. Some consumers there who burned Alberta coal last winter complained that it filled the house with gas and smoke.

Westerners know why that happened. The parties in question did not know how to adjust their drafts, and tried to burn the Alberta coal as they were used to handling Pennsylvania anthracite. This is the time to tell them that Alberta coal is different, and how to go about getting heat from it minus fumes.

Campaign Against Weeds

Mayor Harry D. Ainlay deserves the commendation of being a citizen for initiating the campaign which Edmonton will shortly wage against weeds. The present proposal is that boulevards and city property will be sprayed with weed-killer, and that private citizens will be urged to take similar measures on their own grounds and in their own yards.

Those who take pride in the appearance of their premises will require very little urging once the example is set and an incentive offered by the city.

Those who do not take pride in their land and gardens should be subjected to legal pressure to do so. There is, or should be, a bylaw compelling all property owners to keep their premises free of weeds and authorizing the city to clean up private premises at the owners' expense.

It will be little use cleaning up the boulevards and parks and vacant areas unless this bylaw is rigidly enforced.

Weed eradication has been amplified by the recent appearance on the market of chemicals to remove that kind of weeds and similar nuisance plants. These mixtures, plus a little labor, should be of great help. They can improve the appearance of Edmonton many hundred percent.

The Road Ahead

Watch for a new intensive advertising campaign designed to sell the veteran to industry. Sponsored by the Department of Veterans Affairs, the campaign will point out the many preferential characteristics the veteran offers to prospective employers.

The old appeal to "duty" and "sympathy" has been abandoned. Now the veteran will be sold on his own merits as a special kind of civilian. Advertising will emphasize the special skills and training the veteran received in the forces which will have value on the labor market. It is being timed to coincide with expanded opportunities expected in every line of business now that reconstruction is really getting into its stride -- provided the strikes don't sabotage it.

Most employers have a First Great War complex as far as veterans are concerned. Only a few realize that a veteran is not a relic of the past, but a man who has learned in the services skills which are valuable and easily adaptable to civilian life. This was a mechanized war and even the ordinary foot-soldier was a specialist in a small percentage of the armed forces -- had to acquire a lot of specialized mechanical knowledge of one kind or another. This new campaign is designed to point out, logically and without resorting to sentiment, the reason why a veteran should have preference in civilian employment. He deserves this, not because he is a veteran, but because he has something special to offer which employers need. This appeal is bound to be more acceptable to the public generally who are beginning to get just a little tired of hearing about all that was done for them. The veteran is more acceptable to the veterans, most of whom feel that they have what it takes and who don't want sympathy.

After all, the veterans represent the physically select of the nation -- and in a general way a superior mental equipment. Add to this the training in discipline and adaptability to labor which they received in the armed forces, and it seems reasonable to suggest that the veteran as a class has something more to offer an employer than most.

Another feature will be that facts are more available about how veterans who have already obtained employment are getting along. To bolster up their statements about the desirability of the veteran as an employee the Department of Veterans Affairs has now reported from employers in all parts of Canada which bear out their contention that the veteran has enough to offer the employer to justify their plea that he be given an opportunity of showing that he has what it takes to be a preferential type of civilian.

Today in Europe

by Randolph Churchill.

MILAN, Italy -- The history of the Christian Democrats in Italy is even more striking than that of the Fascists in France. And whereas in France the Communists have only been checked, in Italy they have been routed. Taking these two election results together, Western Europe is going to have a chance to reestablish an orderly system of life.

Now that moderate governments are assured in the two most important countries of Europe, Britain and the United States will do well to redouble their efforts to aid their economic recovery. Much will depend upon the harvests in France and Italy. May rains should assure both countries of bumper crops. It will be more than anything to aid their stability.

But inflationary tendencies can only be arrested by high production. This is impossible without coal of which Italy is even shorter than France. Even though the Italian people have shown they wish to throw in their lot with the free Western world, but if they cannot produce food and work, they might easily be discouraged.

The passing of the House of Savoy has taken place quietly. A year ago, no one would have predicted that the monarchy would receive as many as 10,000,000 votes. That it did was largely due to the astute campaigning of ex-King Humbert.

No doubt the monarchy would have had a better chance if the referendum had not been held simultaneously with the election of the Constituent Assembly. Large numbers of Christian Democrats and Socialists would have preferred the monarchy, but their leaders were afraid they would lose votes.

Despite this, an enormous number of Christian Democrats and Socialists must have voted for the monarchy. The two groups who openly supported the monarchy polled only about 2,000,000 votes. But another 8,000,000 votes were cast for the monarchy by adherents of parties which allied only about 100,000 votes.

Considering the campaign waged against the House of Savoy the monarchists have reason to be satisfied. They have mobilized. If the monarchy had won by a narrow margin, Humbert would have been an acceptable compromise. But the solid vote obtained for the monarchy raises the possibility that, in the future, Humbert might be recalled.

Barricades or Bureaucrats

By M. T. Richardson

PARIS -- One thing a traveller to Europe can count on: the same old story of war is the English Channel.

We left London on the boat train for Folkestone. We had lunch on the boat. I lost mine at 2:04 p.m.

The war has left fresh scars on the landscape. In the aftermath of the tourist, unless you have a Bretton Woods expert along, you will sail away confused about money in Europe. In Belgium, £1 is worth 176 francs. In Switzerland £1 is worth 17 francs. In France the pound is worth 480 francs. In actual currency, you can take only 45 out of the 100 francs. What you will get for it in France at any particular place cannot be predicted.

Money is scarce and reserves of foreign currency are low. It is known what to do with, the pound is worth 3 francs, against an official rate of 4.25. In Paris, a Pole offered 800 French francs for a pound (the official rate is 480) and 240 francs for a dollar (official rate 120).

In Switzerland, after a windy day, the shops and markets seemed like fairyland. We bought bananas in a street market, ten for $2.80 francs, about 70 cents. Prices are high in Switzerland, but at least a tourist can depend on good accommodation at cheaper places. Silk stockings, which seem plentiful run to $4.80 a pair, and other necessities are available. We even saw nylon at $4.50 a pair, about $4.50.

Common, and army training is still under way. But Switzerland is also noted for its neutrality. In uniform on holiday tours, G.I.'s are everywhere, devoting their "light days" to looking at windows full of wares, speculating on whether to buy one out of the $4.60 allowed them for the holiday.

We kindly affectioned one to another, and one another love in honor preferring one another. -- Romans -- 12:10.

Why Grow Old?

Not a physical culture instructor, actress Suzi Crandall nevertheless is vitally interested in her posture. She hopes to maintain good posture by following advice provided by Josephine Lowman.

ALMA HAWKINS, assistant professor of physical education at George Williams College in Chicago has her pupils analyze themselves, under her direction. They observe each other walking and sitting and tell each other what they feel to be incorrect in posture.

It seems to me that this must be most stimulating. Friendly criticism in a group in which all members are working toward a common goal, that of increased beauty and health, has a meaning for young people which professional criticism could not possibly have.

Then there is another very constructive thing which Miss Hawkins is doing. She has the girls mark off what they have eaten each day on a chart. This has much more meaning than vague exhortation and instruction in what they should eat, with no practical follow-up. It might be a very splendid idea for all of us. We might be surprised if we kept such a chart and then compared it with optimum diet, to see just how far short we fall of best nourishment.

MISS HAWKINS ALSO provides a theory which is most logical but is seldom considered. She gives many locomotor exercises (those done which move through space.) Her idea is that as long as we are alive we are active. Therefore the tenets of good posture and coordination should be carried into motion. Thus, the progression from lying or sitting exercises to those done while moving. It seems to me that this is a most intriguing idea and one which has been neglected in the past.

In order to learn good posture you must learn to keep the same alignment when standing or sitting or walking that you have become conscious of in your sitting or lying down posture exercises.

You would have laughed had you been there while Miss Hawkins and I were talking. During an interview or talk between two physical culturists gym clothes should be worn by the participants. It was impossible to talk while sitting down near here early today when getting up to demonstrate different exercises. My casually was a run in one hip-high pair of nylon stockings.

I DO NOT KNOW what hers was. However it was worth it! Remember your posture directions in your everyday life. Otherwise your posture cannot improve.

Clothing Drive Opens in City

The national clothing drive for the afflicted peoples of Europe and Asia was opened here on Monday. Chairman for the Edmonton division, James Long, reported a large number of donations. Various service clubs are participating in an all out effort to make the present drive as successful as that of last October, when Canada sent 12,228,000 pounds of material overseas. Winter clothing is particularly being sought in this campaign. It is planned that all contributions shall be sent to Europe in time to be distributed before the cold weather sets in. One general request has been issued by the committee—please go through the pockets of all garments carefully and see that no matches of any kind are left in them. The campaign will continue until June 27.

How a Canadian Pioneered an Industry that Serves All Mankind...

BACK IN 1857 James M. Williams of Hamilton, Ontario, could scarcely have dreamed of such miracles-to-come as the motor car, the farm tractor and the domestic oil furnace. Yet in truth he might be called the father of these servants of mankind.

For 89 years ago, James Williams began to market oil obtained from holes scooped in the ground in Inniskillen Township of Lambton County, in the Province of Ontario. He set up Canada's first oil refinery in Hamilton, and opened up many new oil wells in the nearby oilfields. In the same year, other oil pioneers were at work in Pennsylvania, but the oil company, founded by Williams, is today believed to have been the first producing and refining company in North America.

In the years since those pioneer days, Williams' pioneer oil industry has grown from a small neighborhood affair to a Canada-wide organization, employing many thousands of Canadians, and serving millions of Other Canadians in every city and hamlet and on every farm.

The Record in 1945

In 1945, for example, Imperial Oil Limited processed 104,700 barrels of crude oil every day in its seven Canadian refineries to meet Canadian needs. Its drilling crews drilled more than 26 miles of exploratory wells and about 25 miles of wells in proven oil fields—all in Canada. Thousands of railway tank cars and motor trucks were kept rolling to keep up with the task of distributing 570 different kinds of Imperial Oil products to Canadians in all parts of the country. Five of our nine largest sea-going tankers survived bitter submarine warfare and were almost continuously at sea. Thirteen lake tankers flying the Imperial banner moved busily from opening to close of navigation.

Altogether in 1945, Imperial Oil made 1,291,000,000 gallons of products available to Canadians. The company's average profit was four fifths of a cent per gallon.

The oil industry is big because only a big industry could provide "what it takes" to fill the huge demands made upon it by the entire nation. It is big for the same reason that our Canadian railway systems are big—because it's a large-scale job to serve, economically and efficiently, the needs of all the millions of Canadians—in all parts of this country 4,000 miles wide and 1800 miles from north to south.

The Challenge of 1946

This first postwar year brings a bigger job than ever before. As we see it, our task is not only to improve consistently the quality and usefulness of our products, but to conduct our operations in such a way that we will make the best practicable contribution to prosperity and social welfare.

We're giving that job immediate attention. Plans already launched call for the building of new plants, the purchase of new ships, the drilling of more Canadian wells to increase our facilities and ability to serve you . . . and all Canada.

Red Deer Cowboys To Get Real Test

RED DEER, Alta., June 17.—(CP) Bulldozing cowboys who will be throwing them when the Red Deer Stampede rolls around June 21-22 are going to get a chance at "the meanest thing on four legs." That's the way Herschel Bryant, live-stock dealer rounding up tough

Medical Advances Outlined at Meet

By George Ronald
BANFF, Alta., June 17 (CP)—Dr. Harold R. Griffith of Montreal Saturday described to a round table conference at the Canadian Medical Association meeting the advances in recent years in the use of curare, a poison once used on arrowheads by South American Indians and now employed by the medical profession to relax patients during operations.

DR. GRIFFITH introduced curare about six years ago after finding that infinitesimal doses were practically harmless to humans if properly given. It paralyzes muscular action and makes operations easier. The amount of other anaesthesia can be reduced when curare is introduced.

At the general session Dr. F.A. Turnbull of Vancouver described how the operation of cordomyrectomy, which carries pain from the cancerous growth. It is an alternative to the undesirable extreme of doping of a patient who suffers intractable pain, he said.

Japanese Kiddies Prepared for War

TOKYO, June 17 (BUP)—Japanese school children were prepared in their classes for world aggression and even were taught how to use light machine guns and bayonets, the first prosecution witness testified today in the trial of former premier Hideki Tojo and other leading war criminal suspects.

THE WITNESS was Lt. Col. Donald R. Nugent, former educator in Japan and now chief of Allied headquarters' civil information and education section. A native of San Francisco, Nugent taught at schools in Osaka between 1937 and 1941.

He said that in 1941, between 30 and 40 per cent of the entire high school course consisted of military training.

This military training either was direct physical drill or education slanted toward placing Japan on a war footing," he told the 11-man tribunal hearing the case.

He testified that training courses consisted of outdoor drill, conditioning marches, handling weapons up to light machine guns, open country maneuvers, street fighting and bayonet drill.

These instructions and lectures made students "militarily aggressive, fanatically devoted to their country and blindly obedient to authority," Nugent said. The final result, he added, was that they were led to believe it was Japan's mission to dominate the world.

"I typed 144 words a minute on a RE-MANUFACTURED* Underwood"

Says IRMA WRIGHT
Canada's Premier Typist

One of the world's fastest typists and five times champion of the Dominion, Miss Wright typifies the efficiency and competence of Canadian office women. Her international speed titles and coast-to-coast typing demonstrations have been for two decades the inspiration and guide of countless thousands of secretaries, stenographers, students and commercial teachers from Halifax to Victoria.

"A speed of 144 words per minute is much faster than ordinary typewriter-use requires," Miss Wright states. "But it convinced me, for one, how completely factory-rebuilding restores an Underwood's original perfection. While waiting for new equipment, wise Underwood users have their present machines re-manufactured. It means more years of new-machine service out of them and increased values when they are later traded in on post-war models."

A Canadian Press despatch dated from London, May 23rd reported that a delegation then in London had assured the British Government that our Prairie farmers would be satisfied WITH A MAXIMUM PRICE OF $1.25 FOR THEIR WHEAT (Basis No. 1 Northern, Fort William).

WILL YOU BE SATISFIED with any such price — this year — next year — or for even longer?

What if the world price goes still higher next year? Would you be satisfied with $1.25?

Even the British farmer got $1.78 for his wheat this year and is guaranteed $2.00 for next year's crop.

Why then should British importers expect to buy your wheat (which is of superior quality) for less money than they guarantee to their own farmers?

The French farmers are guaranteed $1.78 for this year's crop, and yet the delegation is reported to have said that you will be satisfied with $1.25.

The United States' farmer is now getting the equivalent of $2.18 a bushel in Canadian money for his wheat — so by comparison you are already losing 63¢ a bushel even if you get the full $1.55.

IT DOESN'T MAKE SENSE. We do not think that any such price as $1.25 represents your will or any agreement on your part — regardless of whether you are a member of a Wheat Pool or not.

Members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange are strongly in favour of a healthy FLOOR price, but they firmly believe that prairie farmers should get the top prices that other nations' farmers are now getting for wheat.

THINK THIS OVER. Then do more than just think. ACT — PROTEST — AND PROTEST LOUDLY AND LONG to the powers that be, until you get justice. DEMAND that your elected representatives secure for you justice and equality of prices.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a boy friend in the service who sends me money. I don't spend it because I don't love him. I have told him so, but he keeps on sending me money. What shall I do with it? He wants to marry me when he comes home on a furlough, and when I tell him that I won't marry him, he wants me not to marry anybody else. What shall I do?

Answer: Don't marry any man with whom you are not desperately in love because it takes a lot of love to make marriage worthwhile and happy. The boy's threat is only a bluff. There is no way he can possibly marry you against your will. I am glad you haven't spent the money the boy sent you because it shows that you are an honest girl and not a chiseler. Deposit it in some bank to his account and send him the deposit slip.

Most War Veterans Soon Re-Established

OTTAWA, June 17 (CP) — Veterans Minister McKenzie said Saturday a government survey indicated that "the large majority of veterans are becoming re-established in civilian life within 18 months of discharge." His statement was based on a survey prepared April 30 by his department and officials of the National Employment Service.

It was found that veterans unemployed at that time represented 82 per cent of the total discharged and that of the total who had been discharged 18 months or more only 5.5 per cent were registered as unemployed," the minister said.

Invite Inspection Of British Zone

BERLIN, June 17 (CP) — Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, deputy governor of the British Zone of Germany, announced Saturday that correspondents of every country except Russia may inspect Britain's progress in de-Nazifying its zone.

He told a press conference that disarmament of German forces in the British zone is complete and the elimination of German war potential is progressing on schedule.

Sir Brian challenged other occupying authorities to prove they have matched Britain's record and likewise challenged them to allow free inspection of each zone by correspondents.

Specifically eliminating Soviet correspondents from looking over the British area, he said:

"The Russians will get the same facilities for inspection of our zone as they give us."

He also considered that the facilities the Russians now extend in their occasional strictly-conducted tours allow freedom of movement or observation.

Billy Conn, Confident, Plans Cautious Fight But Champ Louis Expects to Win Slugging

By JOE LOUIS
Heavyweight Champion of the World

(Written exclusively for International News Service and The Edmonton Bulletin. World copyright. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

POMPTON LAKES, N.J., June 17 (INS) — Billy Conn has been on my mind, off and on, for more than five years, and right now he's the man I think of most. I hope I can forget him and his speed after next Wednesday night.

IT ISN'T GENERALLY known, and I don't think it was ever written before, but Billy and I have been signed for this fight since before we both went into the army. It wasn't a real official boxing commission contract, but it was a contract between me and Conn and Uncle Mike Jacobs calling for us to fight again as soon as the war was over and we were discharged from the army.

That's one reason why I thought of Billy when I had time during the war. But there wasn't too much time. There was another kind of fighting I was worried about. A lot of Jews and Germans to think about. I guess months went by when I was much too busy to think about Conn, but he'd pop in to my head when things slackened.

I WAS IN ENGLAND, after I went into the army, and in North Africa and in Italy. I never got far into the Pacific, but I did get to Alaska and the Aleutians, and I never want to see the Aleutians again. That's too cold and far away from everything for me and my blood.

But I liked my stay in the army. A fellow like me, even if he is a heavyweight champion of the world, never has a chance to see those places. Maybe England, but never Africa and Alaska. What he said was: "You see, you're fighting just like I told you you would. Letting him make you fight his fight."

It was just one of those things. I said to Blackburn: "I'll knock Conn out this round." I just felt cocky, I guess. And I did.

A funny thing about that fight was that the longer it went the stronger I got. But in the first six or seven rounds I had no spring in my legs at all. I may not have looked too good in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth, but I felt much stronger. Billy danced around and I guess I must have looked awful slow trying to nail him. Speed was never one of my best things.

Then in the thirteenth, exactly as I knew I would, I set Billy up, that he did. I found out then that he was coming. He couldn't get out of the way. And he walked right into a right cross. That was all.

I DON'T KNOW just how I'll be this time, because I don't know whether Conn plans a different fight than last time. But I imagine he is getting ready for one of those sock and run fights and I am ready for any emergency.

When I first went to West Baden Springs, Ind., to start early training, Nanny Seamon, trainer, and I sat down and discussed all angles. There was something that I ought to get Conn the same way I got Schmeling the second time, but we threw that plan out.

In the first place, if I went after Conn the way I did Schmeling, Conn's trickiness and speed might mess me up. If I failed in an attempt to get him in the first round, it might take me eleven or twelve rounds more to get unwound. We figured that I cannot afford to make any mistakes against Conn and his left hand, which piles up points pretty well.

PEOPLE HAVE BEEN saying that Conn didn't lose his head in the thirteenth round in 1935. I say that he did. I found out then that he was coming. He couldn't get out of the way. And he walked right into a right cross. That was all.

and had none of that extra drive a fighter needs. I had Pastor down five times in the first round but didn't nail him for keeps until the eleventh.

By BILLY CONN
Challenger for the World's Heavyweight Championship

(Written exclusively for International News Service and The Edmonton Bulletin. World copyright. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

GREENWOOD LAKE, N.J., June 17 (INS) — After thinking about fighting Joe Louis again for five long years, I am convinced that I will win the world heavyweight championship at the Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

I'VE HAD A LOT of time to think, for I served four years in the U.S. Army, and even when I was asleep my dreams were all ways of the Brown Bomber. He beat me before — on June 18, 1941 at the Polo Grounds — but the mistake I made that night will not be repeated, now that I have been lucky enough to get another shot at him.

It has been said that I lost my head in the 13th round. That is not true. I made a mistake. In the 13th round I staggered Joe with a right to the jaw. When the bell rang he went into his corner on unsteady legs. As I returned to my corner, I said to Johnny Ray, my manager: "I can take him."

"Don't take any chances," Johnny warned.

RAY HAS BEEN panned for allowing me to come up for the 12th round with both fists flying. It was mine. I didn't lose my head. I knew what I was doing, but I made a mistake. I went out to knock Louis out, only to run into a terrific right to the jaw. Had I gone down from the punch and taken a count, I'd have been all right. I'd made a mistake.

It's all about boxing and likes to slug. It's all Irish in him. And when he er or later, that will be the kind of fighting I like.

A lot of people worry about me being such an old man. I surely feel old. I feel healthy and young and as if I'd kept on fighting ten years more. Fighting and training. I'm in wonderful shape. There's only three years difference between my age and Conn's. He's been having birthdays too, you know.

I had eight and a half years edge on Schmeling the second time, but I had eight and a half years on him the first time, too. Jess Willard the army kept and still went into the 26th round under that hot sun at Cuba. Bob Fitzsimmons was 35 when he beat Jim Corbett, who was four years younger.

I FIGURE FIGHTING is a combination of frame and mind and good condition. I'm in great condition and have no worries. And I'm not old at 32.

In his next article, Tuesday, Joe Louis will tell exactly how he plans to fight Conn Wednesday night.

I made was in slaying on my feet. Louis, knowing I was hurt, smashed again with his left. Then came another right. There were half a dozen blows to my head before a left hook turned me sideways and I fell into Joe as I slumped to the canvas. Referee Eddie Joseph started to count.

I RECALL A FIGHT I had with Oscar Hankins in Pittsburgh back in 1937. He hit me a right hand in the second round and I fell flat on my face. I just got up at the count of nine and for the rest of the fight Oscar never got near me.

It might have been the same thing all over again had Louis dropped me with the first punch. He didn't although he stunned me. I hung on or tried to. Joe battered me to the canvas. Even as I was falling I knew that I had to get up. I couldn't take any more of those. And I didn't. I just kept moving and boxing and in the end I received the decision.

In that connection I like to recall my first fight with Fred Apostoli, the former middleweight champion. In an early round Fred doubled me over with a left hook to the body. Right then and there I decided I couldn't take any more of those. And I didn't. I just kept moving and boxing and in the end I received the decision.

I can't say yet what kind of a fight I'll make against Louis. I can tell you I'm not going to be a short fight, no matter what Gene Tunney thinks, or Joe Louis has planned. I know I'm a heavyweight such as was Max Schmeling, and I'm not going to be a stationary target for Joe to shoot at in those early rounds.

IN PREDICTING my defeat in 1937, the former middleweight champion, Gene Tunney, hasn't taken my legs into consideration. Gene doesn't know how fast I can be a stationary target for Joe to run away from during those early rounds.

It has been a struggle getting into condition. I started away back in January when I went to Hot Springs, Ark., for seven weeks. I started boxing with Jackie, my brother, in the Lyceum gymnasium in Pittsburgh back in March. I moved to here at Greenwood last April 2 and I've been here ever since.

When I started I weighed 196 pounds. Frankly I was fat. I took the baths at the springs and since I came here I've done two miles on the road every morning. Two miles may not seem much, but I can run the entire distance at top speed which is something few fighters do. I've boxed 300 rounds at least, and that is what I need most. I feel great, my mind is good and I'm still able to move fast. There are there and get away from punches.

I'VE COME DOWN to around 182 pounds, and as the individual most interested I can say that I'm satisfied with my condition.

I hope Louis has trained satisfactorily too, for I want to beat the real Joe Louis, the Louis who is one of the great champions of all time in the ring at the Yankee Stadium Wednesday night. I'm convinced that I can do it and I'm looking forward to becoming the next world heavyweight champion.

In his next article, Tuesday, Conn will tell of his plans for the fight — how he expects to win.

fighting for the heavyweight title and there is sure to be a delay while former champions are introduced from the ring.

I'VE WARMED UP before going into the ring and then cooled off before the fight started. I would have done worse off than I came in cold.

So I'll take my chances as I always have. I know that nobody, not even Joe Louis, is going to hit me when I don't want him to. That means I'm going to hit me in a vital spot when I'm giving my attention to nothing other than that decision.

In that connection I like to recall my first fight with Fred Apostoli, the former middleweight champion. In an early round Fred doubled me over with a left hook to the body. Right then and there I decided I couldn't take any more of those. And I didn't. I just kept moving and boxing and in the end I received the decision.

I can't say yet what kind of a fight I'll make against Louis. I can tell you I'm not going to be a short fight, no matter what Gene Tunney thinks, or Joe Louis has planned. I know I'm a heavyweight such as was Max Schmeling, and I'm not going to be a stationary target for Joe to shoot at in those early rounds.

IN PREDICTING my defeat in 1937, the former middleweight champion, Gene Tunney, hasn't taken my legs into consideration. Gene doesn't know how fast I can be a stationary target for Joe to run away from during those early rounds.

It has been a struggle getting into condition. I started away back in January when I went to Hot Springs, Ark., for seven weeks. I started boxing with Jackie, my brother, in the Lyceum gymnasium in Pittsburgh back in March. I moved to here at Greenwood last April 2 and I've been here ever since.

When I started I weighed 196 pounds. Frankly I was fat. I took the baths at the springs and since I came here I've done two miles on the road every morning. Two miles may not seem much, but I can run the entire distance at top speed which is something few fighters do. I've boxed 300 rounds at least, and that is what I need most. I feel great, my mind is good and I'm still able to move fast. There are there and get away from punches.

I'VE COME DOWN to around 182 pounds, and as the individual most interested I can say that I'm satisfied with my condition.

I hope Louis has trained satisfactorily too, for I want to beat the real Joe Louis, the Louis who is one of the great champions of all time in the ring at the Yankee Stadium Wednesday night. I'm convinced that I can do it and I'm looking forward to becoming the next world heavyweight champion.
